Mr. Otho F. Mears Thinks W. A Jones Has Had the Salary Long Enough.

Both Speakers Are Constantly Cheered and Both Showed Strength.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
ACCOMACK, C. H., VA., May 7.--Con gressman William A. Jones, the candidate for renomination for Congress, and Mr. Otho F. Mears, his apponent both spoke here to-day. The crowd was surprisingly arge, near filling the courthouse, Mr. Mears spoke first. His special plea was that Mr. Jones had had the office for sixteen years, drawing $80,000 salary and tha the castern shore ought now to have a share. Mr. Mears was especially eloquent n his plea for Accomack's support as it was the place of his birth and early manhood. He stated he was opposed to it was the place of his birth and early manhood. He stated he was opposed to the primary system as it shut the door to any man of small means to apply for office and was made for men who diew large salaries. He bowed to it now as his party stood by it.

Mr. Jones, in his speech, quickly claimed credit for having first favored the primary and for having fought hard to final success in making it an established principle, of the Democratic party. Mr. Jones was surprised at Mr. Mears five-times retierated statement of his having dvawn $90,000 salary in sixteen years, as an argument for his nomination.

The speaker sald he could not consider the office of congressman from a pecunary view and was startled at his apponents low ples in talking of dollars and cents. Mr. Jones said he came here in a new role, as this was the first time he had ever had opposition in his party. He had always come to the Eastern Shore before as an advocate of his parties nominee, and claimed credit for redeeming the district in his election over the Republican candidate sixteen years ago.

He briefly reviewed the national issues and defined his position. He defended his record and said his opponent had none to defend. It was necessary now to have a broad and not a contracted view, and even in his attention to the national affairs, he had not neglected his district. He said that although his district had no large cities, no public works and no foreign commerce, he had obtained, in sixteen years, more than $500,000 in direct appropriations. He felt that no ne else could have done better.

Both speakers received a fine welcome, and from the frequent cheering it was hard to tell which had the more friends.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) LYNCHBURG, VA., May 7.—Harry Axleroth, a student at the Washington and Lee University, who is from Philadelphia, and who had come here to-day to participate in the track meet with the Randolph-Macon Callege, at Mshland, was arrested this morning on Ninth Street on the charge of violating a city ordinance by carrying a vaulting pole on the sidewalk, the ordinance prohibiting

A storm of indignation was aroused when the officer making the agest called the patrol van for the purpose of sending the student to the police station, instead of permitting him to walk the one

Prominent business men remonstrated Prominent business men remonstrated with the officer in vain, and the student was hauled through five squares around the hill to the station, after being kept in the business section for a quarter of an hour, waiting for the wagon, and being the cause for the gnthering of nearly two hundred persons.

When the incident became known, men of means flocked to the Police Court.

defered until Mr. Lee's arrival.
When the case was gone into, Axleroth was discharged.
The hauling of the young student in the van was the cause of one of the most decided sensitions experienced here for several years, and the action of the officer in refusing to allow the student to accompany reputable men to the station, who would vouch for his appearance in the Police Court, is being denounced in no uncertain terms.

Attorney Lee has been retained by public-spirited citizens to prepare and prosecute charges against Officer Short, who made the arrest. This will be done shortly.

Some idea of the interest in the case can be gleaned from the fact that the student could have gotten ball this morning if it had been necessary to the arcumt of two millions, from persons who were attracted to the Police Court, feeling the young man had been humiliated beyond expression.

Horribly Dirty Place.

A horribly dirty place, which received the special attention of the ladies, was the United States postoffice. The ladies made complaint to the local authorities. The complaint was printed in the newspapers and finally reached the official ear of the Postoffice Department, at Washington. The Postoffice Department passed it on to the Treasury Department, as the custodian of all public buildings. That department dispatched General Inspector of Government Buildings W. Haverstick here on a special mission to make a personal investigation of the complaing. He was not slow to announce that the complaint was fully justified, but the government was only partly responsible for it. The city itself was filthy—streets, alleys, lots and all—and the people themselves, were carcless and positively lawbreakers in the use of the postoffice. Without a clean city and people who would not throw paper on the floor and sit in the windows to open their mail and splt tobacco juice and throw cigar stumps and chewing gum on the floor, the building could not be kept clean. He said that if these abuses continue, some one will be arrested. People entering the postoffice from the filthy streets brought in the dirt on their feet.
